

SISTERS OF NEW J

MAIN BUILDING, COLLEGE OF ST. ELIZABETH, CONVENT, N. J.

COLLEGE OF ST. ELIZABETH CONVENT, NEW JERSEY

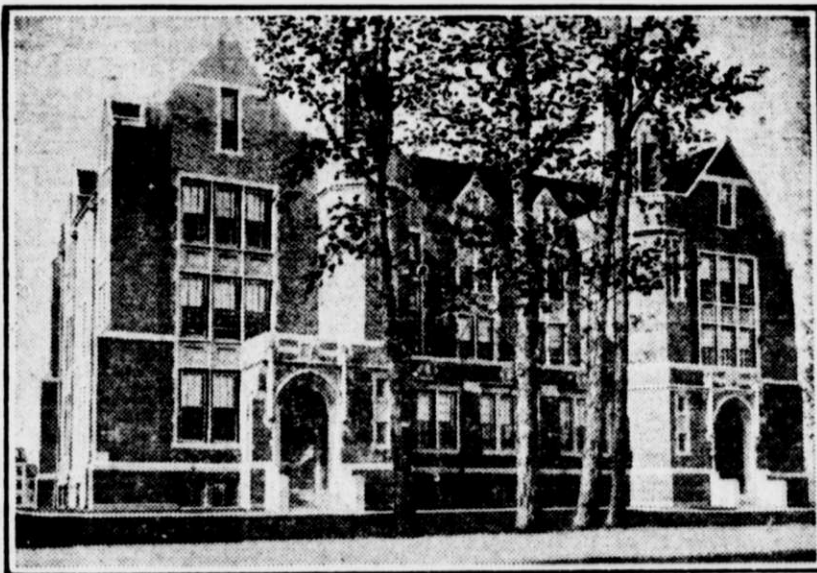

FOUNDED in 1859, the College of St. Elizabeth, as it is to-day, represents a development of over half a century in Catholic Education for women in the United States. In size, scope, and favor it ranks unquestionably with the foremost educational institutions of the country.

The courses at St. Elizabeth's begin with the grammar school for little girls, and continue up to and through college to the degree of A. B. and B. Sc. There are also special schools in music, pedagogy, domestic science, and a secretarial course for business training may be attended separately, or in conjunction with the general studies.

The School of Pedagogy provides excellent normal training for high school and intermediate schools and for teachers of technical subjects, such as drawing, manual arts, home economics, music and physical instruction.

SANTA MARIA HALL, Erected 1913

SANTA RITA HALL, College Dormitory

St. Elizabeth's is endowed with a splendid physical equipment with which to carry on its work. The main buildings are the College proper, Xavier Hall, Santa Maria Hall (for the college students exclusively), Santa Rita Hall (the college dormitory), the Academy, the Convent, the Chapel, and the Rectory.

The extensive grounds which surround the buildings have long been under cultivation and are beautifully laid out in parks, shaded avenues, with campus, lawns, trees and shrubbery, greenhouses, etc. A large gymnasium, tennis courts and other facilities provide opportunity for that healthful exercise so necessary to proper physical development.

The College of St. Elizabeth is just 26

THE CHAPEL
At St. Elizabeth's

miles (on the Morris & Essex division of the Lackawanna R. R.), from New York City. Located on a plateau which forms the summit of a general sloping eminence, within two miles of Morristown, it enjoys every natural advantage of climate, air, water supply and pleasant rural surroundings.

The Dean of St. Elizabeth's will be glad to confer with parents in regard to taking their daughters under her charge. Address Secretary, College of St. Elizabeth, Convent Station, N. J.

St. Elizabeth's is the Mother House of the Sisters of Charity of New Jersey, under whose care are also the successful schools mentioned on the opposite page.